Governor Director

Dear Prospective Trooper,

Thank you for your interest in Arizona’s premier law enforcement agency—the Arizona Department of Public Safety—a unique and honored member of the law enforcement profession. We strive to hire only the very best candidates. This requires strict adherence to our selection guidelines and those of the Arizona Peace Officer Standards and Training Board (AZPOST). For us to do this, we require each applicant to furnish very detailed and accurate information about themselves and their life experiences.

After you read this letter, please proceed to the AZPOST requirements link in the announcement. Review the rules that govern peace officer certification in our state. Pay particular attention to those activities that disqualify applicants.

If you find you have something that disqualifies you forever, please do not apply. If you find your past activities are temporarily disqualifying (e.g. an action that prevents consideration for a specific period of time), wait to apply until the disqualification period has passed. To apply in spite of these disqualifications can only lead to one of two results—immediate disqualification or, in the worst case, inaccurate or intentionally misleading information being placed on a critical document. The latter, as noted above, will be discovered and you will be disqualified. Discovery of inaccurate or intentionally misleading information, will most likely cause you to be excluded from any future opportunities.
